

The Peace Process in Colombia

Marcia Mejia,
Indigenous Nonam leader

This presentation, brought to Lexington by Witness for Peace, will focus on the peace process in Colombia, with special emphasis on indigenous issues, victims' rights, and reparations.

Our speaker is Marcia Mejia, an indigenous leader from the Santa Rosa de Guayacan community. She is a spokeswoman for the Communities Building Peace in the Territories (CONPAZ) network, which works on issues of victims' rights and reparations. As a representative of Valle del Cauca, she is working on a proposal for training indigenous women to safeguard ancestral knowledge.
